Missions of being a House Tutor of Postgraduate House (PGH HT)

The role of House Tutor is vital to Postgraduate House service; it is more than just a friendly presence on the floor. The HTs focus on enhancing the quality of living in PGH for their fellow students. Their tasks include fostering community, providing empathetic support, strengthening the communication between the University and students, and being attentive to the safety and security of students. Below are some of their primary responsibilities:

- To develop the PGH community and residence life – HTs create programs and activities to meet the needs of PGH students. As a community organizer, HTs also host floor or building meetings/events, and initiate interactions among students and encourage community involvement. A positive, supportive and cooperative living atmosphere is beneficial to both the students and the University.
- To provide Resources and Advice – As a peer-to-peer helper, HTs serve as a role model of being a PGH student. HTs are resourceful in solving housing problems from the students through the knowledge and understanding they receive from trainings, working experience with SAO-SRS, and their own personal experience. HTs also serve as a referral agent for the students to other campus resources such as the Student Activity Center, Sports Complex, Library, and etc.

- To assist in PGH Facility Management – HTs work hand in hand with Student Housing and other HTs as a team to ensure that students' inquires and facility defects receive prompt attention on their floors. HTs complete round checks and work on students housing issues on a daily basis.
- To enforce University policies – HTs are attentive to residence safety and building security. They ensure that students follow the University and PGH Rules, PGH Move-in Declaration, and residence fees and other charges in detail to maintain a respectful environment. By familiarizing with the University regulations and rules as well as the activities organized by University, HTs are equipped to advise students on their actions and decisions while informing the students how their actions may impact the entire PGH community.

HTs are also required to stay in the assigned room until the last move-out period.
- HTs Training - During the semesters, both new and returning HTs must attend training sessions coordinated by the Student Housing staff. The primary goal of the trainings is to provide HTs comprehensive understandings on their prospective roles and tasks, as well as the different skill sets (for instance, first responders to fire alarm) that are necessary for them to fulfill their duties. Last but not least, the trainings also serve as an opportunity for the HTs team to build bonding and trust among their members. The trainings include talks and presentations from various units of the University. HTs will Upon requests, HTs are required to assist and participate in the events organized or supported by Student Affairs Office.
